HORSE WAS STRANDED
Peculiar Accident at South Coventry
When John Farrell and James Bromley Were Thrown From Buggy.

In South Coventry late Wednesday afternoon a horse and buggy belonging to Rudolph Miller of Storrs and driven by John Farrell of that place and James Bromley of Bagville were involved in an accident in which the horse was strangled to death and one of the men was thrown from the vehicle. The accident happened at the corner of School and Main streets as the men were on their way home.

While rounding the corner the buggy was going at a good rate of speed when it was struck by a trolley car which caused the horse to become excited. When the buggy became free of the tracks it swung against a fence and overturned, throwing the two men to the ground and at the same time causing the horse to fall. Farrell was knocked unconscious by the fall but Bromley got off without injury. When assistance reached the horse it was found that it had been strangled by the harness. Later on the day Farrell was brought to this city where it was learned that his injuries were not serious. His pain, however, was not relieved.

Wednesday night the owner of the horse went to South Coventry to arrange for the removal of the carcass.
